Get up and hit the gym to ward off mental blues

According to a study, people with low fitness levels are twice likely to develop depression and have a 60 per cent greater chance of suffering from anxiety

AGENCIES
—London—

People with low aerobic and muscular fitness are nearly twice as likely to experience depression, according to a study led by University College London (UCL) researchers.

Participants aged 40 to 69 of the UK Biobank studies. Their baseline aerobic fitness at the start of the study period was tested by using a stationary bike with increasing resistance, while their muscular fitness was measured with a grip strength test.

with better mental health seven years later. People with the lowest combined aerobic and muscular fitness had 98 per cent higher odds of depression, 60 per cent higher odds of anxiety, and 81% higher odds of having either one of the common mental health disorders, compared to those with high levels of overall fitness.

DR DEEPAK GARG

9 ways to protect kids' eyes from screen

FOR YOUR EYES ONLY

- Steps you can take:
1. Make sure that your child takes a break for four to five minutes after every half an hour. By looking far for some time can also help relax your child's eyes.
 2. Don't make them sit under the draft of the AC. The wind blowing across the face can make your children's eyes dry very quickly. Make them sit somewhere else if they are sitting near the air conditioner.
 3. They should spend at least one hour outdoors. This will force your child to look at far distances. It will reverse the action of eye muscles which were functioning while they were glued to the screens and thus reduce eye strain.
 4. Use certain eye drops which help in reducing dryness. There are multiple brands available in the market.
 5. Cast the phone or the computer content on the TV and this will reduce the time we spend doing near work.
 6. Spend more time with your child as it will break their screen cycle. It will make them look away from screens and they will blink more. Because when a person is constantly focused on a screen, he/she is less likely to blink which also leads to dryness and strain.
 7. Buy them a pair of blue light blocking lenses as it reduces the Melatonin levels in the blood and leads to good sleep. But buying blue light blocking lenses won't solve your kid's problem altogether. It is advisable that you consult an eye specialist if some eye problem persists.
 8. Your children should drink enough water. Make sure they sleep early.
 9. Their sitting arrangement should be proper. Don't let your kids sit on a bed or a couch, instead make them sit on a chair and place their computer/ laptop on a table on equal height. For younger kids, put a cushion under their seats, it will reduce their eye strain.
